STRONG QUINTET TO FACE ST. STEPHEN'S IN SEASON'S OPENER

Veterans Make Up Panther Team; Also To Play Albany Pharmacy

Middlebury's basketball team will open its 1925-26 season this week-end when it meets St. Stephen's at Annandale-on-Hudson Friday night and the Albany College of Pharmacy on the following night at Albany. Both opponents are newcomers on the Middlebury slate and little is known of their strength although St. Stephen's was defeated 29-19 by Williams Saturday night and took a 43-18 drubbing from Union. It is to meet Fordham this week before playing the Blue and White.

Coach Hargreaves' team is fast round ing into shape after two weeks of intensive practise and during the scrimmage sessions this week the quintet has been showing unusual strength and speed. Just who will start against St. Stephen's has not been definitely decided as yet but it is likely that the team will be composed of Maynard at center, W. R. Rice and McNeil at forward and Capt. Rice and Knowles at guard, although Towne and Hasseltine may start at forward and guard respectively. All except Maynard are veterans of past seasons and have won their letters.

Annandale-on-Hudson, N. Y., Dec. 15.—The St. Stephen's basketball team will meet Middlebury in the first home game of the season Friday night and from early season indications the Ministers will present a strong lineup against the Blue and White quintet from Vermont. This is the first time that these two schools have met on the basketball court but keen interest is being shown in the contest in view of the fact that Middlebury administered a 7-6 defeat to the football team this fall.

The St. Stephen's team will have somewhat of an advantage over the visitors as they have been practicing for nearly a month and they will have played three games before meeting Middlebury the latter part of the week. In the first game Williams won 29-19 and Union and Fordham will be played this week.

Twenty-five men reported to Coach Bray for the first practice sessions and these have been divided into two groups, one composing the varsity and the other the junior varsity. On the varsity are several of the members of the 1924-25 squad including Capt. Wilson, Stolph, Kennedy, Urquart, Stevens, Harding and Rogan. Among the members of the junior varsity of last year who are showing up well this season is Weeks, as are also Finch and Milliman, new men this year.

The team that will meet Middlebury will in all probability be composed of Milliman at center, Stolph and Kennedy at the forward positions and Wislon and Harding, guards.

It was announced here Monday that Jesse S. Yeaw and Eunice L. Hutchison, both of the class of 1925, were married at Great Chebeogue Island, Maine, June 30. Mr. Yeaw is a member of Dleta Kappa Epsilon and Mrs. Yeaw of Delta Delta Delta. They are living in Rochester, N. Y.

The honor of being the first member of the class of 1925 to become a father goes to Fred J. Herzig. Mr. and Mrs. Herzig announce the birth of Frederick, Jr., on December 4. They are residing in Simsbury, Conn.

CLUBS, SOCIETIES OF ALL SIZES AND DESCRIPTIONS EXIST AT MIDDLEBURY

College students share the general tendency of the human race to band together into groups. Furthermore they have the desire to join groups that are more or less exclusive in the admittance of members. These were the conclusions drawn by a CAMPUS reporter this week at the close of a survey of the various student organizations at Middlebury.

There are no less than thirty-seven clubs, associations or societies of one sort or another on the campus, which are officially recognized by the college. This is entirely exclusive of the various athletic teams, publication boards, and student governing boards. Since there are 595 students in the college this means that there is one organization for every sixteen students. Of course the membership in nearly every case is more than sixteen for practically everyone belongs to more than one. Of the thirty-seven organizations, eighteen are exclusively for men and twelve for women, while only seven recruit members from both sexes.

Of the total of thirty-seven, only five have no prerequisite for membership, while five others will accept anyone mildly interested in their work who wishes to join. To the great majority, entrance can come only through election by the members.

The exclusiveness ranges from that of th Waubanakees, the men's senior honorary society, membership in which is one of the most coveted honors in college, to that of the Christian Associations which welcome anyone as members. On the women's side of the hill, Banshee, the senior honorary society, ranks alongside Waubanakee.

Perhaps the most unique club on the campus in regard to the number of members enrolled is the Press Club, which has one lone member and a faculty advisor. There are few, if any, organizations in any college which are smaller. Strictly speaking the Press Club is not a club at all, but is the college publicity bureau. It was founded several years ago by a group of students who were interested in writing news and who felt that the work of

HOCKEY TEAM PLAYS HAMILTON SATURDAY

Puck Chasers Open Season Which Promises To Be Successful

Middlebury's hockey team will skate into action Saturday afternoon at Clinton, N. Y., when it meets the strong Hamilton College sextet in the first game of the season. The Blue and White puck chasers have been practising since the first of the month and judging from pre-season indications the ice team will be the strongest that has ever represented Middlebury, and one that will compare favorably with any of the opposing teams.

The forward line is especially strong this year and has shown fine form in the workouts during the past three weeks. In all probability Simmons at right wing, Whittemore at center and Hill at left wing will be the forwards that will take the ice against Hamilton with Capt. McLaughlin and Twitchell at defense and Conley at guard, as this combination has worked unusually well.

Several freshmen have come out for this sport and much valuable material has been uncovered. Kelley, a former Middlesex player has been displaying good form as has Burroughs. A freshman hockey team is to be organized this year, and while they will have no regular schedule, they will be used for practice against the varsity and games will be played on Saturdays when the varsity is not playing other collegiate opponents.

A team of seven men together with Manager Schaefer will leave Friday noon for the opening contest. A year ago, Hamilton defeated the Blue 10 to 1.

Burrage Reads "The Fool" Before English Club

A meeting of the English Club was held last Wednesday evening in Pearson's Social Hall. Dorothy Cox '27, and Alice Fales '28, read original work. Professor William S. Burrage delighted those present with an interpretive reading of the first act of Channing Pollock's play, "The Fool". The remainder of the evening was given over to informal discussion while corn was popped in the open hearth.

It was voted to hold the next meeting in February, the exact date to be announced later.

Malam '28, Writes Prize-Winning Short Story

Saxonian Announces Contest Winners; E. M. Hoyt and L. C. Harris Get Honorable Mention

Charles Malam '28, was awarded first place in the Saxonian short-story contest, according to an announcement made Monday by Miss Frances Harder '26, editor of the publication. The contest has been in progress for the past month and was open to all undergraduates.

The winning story was entitled "The Clipping." Mr. Malam is a contributing editor of the Saxonian, a reporter for the CAMPUS, and took part in the Sophomore play, "Charley's Aunt". He is a member of Delta Upsilon fraternity.

Honorable mention was given stories written by Lloyd Harris '27, and E. Murray Hoyt '26. The judges were Professors Burrage, Davison, and Clark. "The Clipping" will appear in the coming number of the Saxonian.

College Christmas Tree Gives Holiday Atmosphere

One of the large evergreen trees back of the Old Chapel was decorated Monday with over a hundred green, red blue and white electric lights. This college Christmas tree is very beautiful at night and together with the light fall of the snow of the last few days gives a striking holiday atmosphere to the campus. The small evergreens in front of Hepburn Hall have also been decorated with colored lights.

SKI MEN TO ENTER LAKE PLACID MEET

Middlebury Sending Team To Big Winter Sports Carnival

Middlebury will be represented by a team of four men at the inter-collegiate winter sports carnival to be held at Lake Placid December 30, according to William B. Grow, '26, manager of the Outing Club. Middlebury was a contestant in the meet last year which was won by Williams. About fifteen colleges are entered this year and, consequently the competition will be keen. While the men who are to participate have been tentatively chosen, their names cannot be published until the question of eligibility has been investigated.

The Outing Club hopes to send teams to the meets at Dartmouth and McGill but as no appropriation has been set aside by the college for this purpose, it is somewhat doubtful as to the probability of this being done.

However, plans for a carnival to take place in Middlebury some time in February are being fostered. This would include a winter sports meet, and, possible, special moving pictures in the evening. If this experiment is successful and the treasury of the club is somewhat repleted, a fund would be established to bear the expenses of any teams which might be organized within the Outing Club next year.

Prof. Barney Relates Biology To Industry

The members of the Science Club met December 11th in the Biology lecture room in Warner Science Building. Professer Barney gave a very interesting talk on the "Relation of Biology to Industry." His lecture centered on the making of pearl buttons from fresh water molluscs, and was illustrated with pictures.

A business meeting was also held in which a report of last year was read by Marion Swift '26, and officers were elected.

The new officers are President, Professor Bryant; Chairman of the Executive Committee, Professor Barney; Secretary-Treasurer, Marion Swift, '26.

Refreshments were served and an informal discussion followed.

"DOC" COOK '24 TO STUDY IN ENGLAND AS RHODES SCHOLAR

Wins Appointment From Vermont; Men Chosen From 32 States

THREE YEARS AT OXFORD UNIVERSITY

Cook Was a Leader In Campus Affairs; Holder Of Track Record

Reginald Lansing Cook, who was graduated from Middlebury with the degree of Bachelor of Science in 1924, was appointed Saturday as the Rhodes Scholar from Vermont for the year 1926. The choice was made from a large group of candidates by the Vermont Rhodes Scholarship Committee, which is made up of several ex-Rhodes Scholars from the state. Upper-classmen and recent graduates of the three Vermont colleges and native Vermonters whose alma maters are in other states were eligible to become candidates. The scholarship gives Cook three years of study at Oxford University in England, beginning next October, his expenses being paid by an annual stipend of 400 pounds sterling. He is at liberty to follow any course of study which he chooses. He intends to take up literature.

Undergraduates, faculty and alumni are unanimous in expressing their pleasure at the choice of Cook for this honor. In his four years as an undergraduate, "Doc" was one of the most outstanding and most versatile men at Middlebury. Besides holding the reputation of being probably the best track athlete that the college has had in years, he held two editorships, was president of his class in his junior year and of the Undergraduate Association during his senior year, and ranked high scholastically.

During his four years in college, Cook was a consistent winner of cross-country meets and of the 440 yard dash in track meets. He is the holder of the college record of 50 1-5 seconds for the quarter mile. He was captain of both cross-country and track. In the field of publications, he was editor of the handbook and literary editor of the 1924 Kaleidoscope in his junior year and editor-in-chief of the "Saxonian" in his senior year. He was one of the charter members of Phi Pi Epsilon, honorary journalistic fraternity. "Doc's" popularity was attested by his election to numerous undergraduate offices. He was chosen as class president and as representative to the Athletic Council during his junior year. As a senior he was given the highest college office, the presidency of the Undergraduate Association. He was also honored by election to membership in both Sages and Waubanakee. He was graduated with high honors in English. "Doc" Cook is a member of the Kappa Delta Rho fraternity.

In the eighteen months since his graduation, Cook has been teaching, studying and writing at his home in Milford, Mass. During the past summer, he was a student at the Breadloaf School of English. A large amount of the poetry which he has written has been accepted for publication in the "Bookman" and in "Verse".

"Doc" will take up his studies at Oxford next fall. He follows Albert F. Gollnick '22 who won the Rhodes Scholarship in 1922 and who is now completing his third year of study at the great English university.

THE FIRE DANGER

The senior, who last week pointed out in our communications column that there is a very great fire hazard in the Old Chapel, stressed a point which all of us realize to be true and which has not been seriously enough considered. No one can deny that steps should be taken at once to avoid any possible catastrophe in the event of a fire in this old building. However, it is even more important, in view of the hazardous condition which exists, that every student take care not to cause a fire.

The rule that there shall be no smoking in the building must be strictly enforced and it is the duty of each individual student to see that it is enforced. Since the building is heated from the central plant, there are no furnace fires in it and hence the only possible causes of a fire would be defective wiring and the carelessness of smokers. Control over the latter, which is the more dangerous of the two, is entirely in the hands of the students. Twice within the past two weeks live cigarette butts have been found in building. There is absolutely no excuse for such carelessness as this. Everybody in college must cooperate to reduce the fire peril to a minimum.

Not only to decrease the fire hazard, but also as a display of good manners, it would be a good idea if the men of the college would form the habit of not lighting their cigarettes until they get outside of the class buildings and the Mead Chapel.

A RHODES SCHOLAR

Middlebury is evry proud to again have one of her graduates chosen as the Rhodes Scholar from Vermont. That Middlebury men have quite often won this honor speaks well for the standing of our institution.

We know that everyone who was associated with "Doc" Cook in his undergraduate days, will agree the choice of him as a Rhodes Scholar is an especially fitting one. With outstanding ability in widely diversified lines, as well as a winning personality, "Doc" surely has the qualifications of a Rhodes Scholar. Undergraduates, alumni and faculty join in extending congratulations to him.

CRABBING

We take this opportunity to extend to all our readers best wishes for the happiest of holidays and all success for the coming year. As the hour of departure approaches, the air tingles more and more with suppressed excitement and holiday spirit. When we think of the good times coming we forget that we are tired. But when we return to the humdrum of everyday lessons and personal contact with our schoolmates, our fatigue and irritability descend once more and eclipse our better selves.

Why should we save the Christmas spirit for vacation alone? The time when we need to be kindest and most cheerful is the time when everyone is tired of work and longing for a change. Yet how often we pass hours wearing out ourselves and our friends crabbing about everything in particular and the world in general. When we are at our best, crabbing is not to be commended but when we are nervous and on edge, it is an abomination. After all, as Doctor Tweedy pointed out at Vespers Sunday, our judgments are merely reflections upon ourselves rather than upon those we judge. If we could only realize that each time we speak disparagingly of others, we hurt ourselves, crabbing would occupy a smaller part in our lives. A habit of continually finding fault is a bad companion to start out in the world with, and if we adopt that habit here in college, it will continue with us after we graduate. At this time of the year with the Christian Doctrines so forcefully brought to the front and with the new year at hand, we should take stock of ourselves and resolve to eradicate the things ruinous to our characters. Crabbing is neither Christianlike nor just. The best Christmas present we could give ourselves would be the gift of saying something pleasant when we feel like making disagreeable comments. Such a gift would benefit everyone.

Interesting Talk on Paris Given By Huet

The French Club was very well entertained at the Chateau Friday evening. M. Eugene Huet of the French department spoke upon "Les Cries de Paris." He very cleverly described the street vendors, those who sell umbrellas, the porcelain mender, the glazier, the man who sells kindling wood, and the vegetable dealer. He also told of the entertainments by musicians, the hurdy-gurdy, and the Punch and Judy show. All the cries were well illustrated.

M. Huet received much worthy applause. He will deliver the same lecture at Burlington and at Worcester in the near future.

SPECIAL VESPERS SERVICE IN CHAPEL MARKS YULE TIDE

Dr. Tweedy of Yale Delivers Inspiring Sermon; Music Is Appropriate

A special Christmas service was held at Vespers Sunday evening. Following the organ prelude by Professor Hathaway, the choir sang Christmas carols outside before entering in the processional. The college orchestra, in its first public appearance of the year, played with exceptional ability Wagner's "Tanhauser", Professor Alfred Larsen directing.

An anthem was rendered by the choir accompanied by Miss Prudence Fish at the piano, Professor Hathaway at the organ and James Thompson '29 on the violin. In a second anthem, Walter Thompson '26 did exceptionally good solo work The final musical selection of the service was a well rendered 'cello solo by Marjorie Cross '28, accompanied by Miss Fish at the piano.

Dr. Henry H. Tweedy, of Yale Divinity School, delivered an excellent sermon, taking as his text, "Judge not, that ye be not judged." "To judge is necessary," he said. "Not to judge is impossible. Then why did Jesus say what He did?"

"The Great Master did not mean so much that we should not judge but that men will judge us by how we judge others. People who live in glass houses should not throw stones. You get in true measure what you give. Your judgments are rooms in your house. They are boomerangs! Whatever you say will be thrown back again to you. Everytime you sit in the judge's seat, you place yourself in the prisoner's pew.

"But judgment can be directed in the right way. It should include love, righteousness, and wisdom.

"Judgment that is made with love must be based on goodwill. The moment you despise a person, you are bound to see his worst side and when he shows his best side, you can't see it. Try to look with love on the person you consider the worst on the campus, and see what happens

"To have righteous judgment, a nation connot look upon another unless it is with a feeling of goodwill. What will boundless goodwill do for prisoners? It may cure them.

"One ought to know something about subjects before he judges them. To condemn the beauty of Browning is not to know poetry. What we all need is more insight, less ignorance; less heat and more light.

"Consider the universe. How wonderful is the light of the stars which takes a million years to reach us. What do you judge it to be? Judge it you must and that judgment will show how people will judge you. All depends upon your idea of the teachings of Jesus. With his whole heart He viewed the universe and spoke of the Father, love, and obedience. He is the one hope of the world. He had judgment which was perfectly loving, perfectly right, and perfectly wise. Consider his teachings. Remember that Judgment Day has arrived this minute. It is now and here. By your judgments God and life are judging you."

University of Vermont has thirteen members of the faculty listed in this year's "Who's Who". Middlebury has four and Norwich two.

Vacation Starts Friday

The Christmas recess starts at 11 o'clock Friday morning and extends until 8 a. m. Tuesday morning, January 5. Chapel will be omitted Friday morning and there will be four classes of forty-five minutes each. Cuts immediately before and after the vacation will count double.

Whereabouts of Many Alumni Not Known; Aid Is Asked To Locate Them

The following list of Alumni represents the "lost sheep" of the College. Their addresses are, and in many cases have long been lost. Undergraduates and Alumni alike are requested to cooperate in trying to locate them. In case the address of any of these is known, or suspected, kindly inform the Alumni secretary, 16 Old Chapel. Fraternity secretaries are especially requested to send in their address lists to enable this office to check the addresses on file.

PRESENT STATUS OF FOOTBALL IS SCORED AT WESLEYAN MEET

Delegates From New England Colleges Propose Changes in Policy

Concerted action was taken against the overemphasis of college football by delegates from nine colleges at the Wesleyan Parley, Sunday, December 6. The conference almost unanimously agreed that football had expanded for the pleasure of the spectacle loving public and sentimental "old grads", that players get no pleasure out of the game, that football overemphasis has warped the purpose of the college. The following resolution was proposed:

"This parley was called for undergraduate consideration of how the purpose of the American college can best be furthered, granted that the purpose is primarily the training of the mind."

"Very subordinate to this purpose is athletics. All intercollegiate athletics was incidental to their origin and should have remained so in their growth. We believe in them; because they encourage friendship between colleges and foster unity within institutions. But one sport, football, has taken such a hold on undergraduates, alumni and the public that its importance over the courses of the playing season looms larger than any other aspect of the college, especially over the primary aspect-intellectual thinking.

"We believe that this situation would he obviated largely by the colleges scheduling only four games each season, each game with a team in its own class and in its own vicinity.

"The reasons which lead us to this conclusion are:

1. Schedules of only four games would render impossible the present annual elimination contests among the teams of the country, and consequently would render impossible the choice of mythical national and even sectional champions. Many teams would remain undefeated instead of a few.

2. With this aspect removed, less publicity would be given the game by the press and the public imagination would not be whetted so that the fever of interest would be forced up within undergraduate bodies.

3. The necessity for spring and early season training would be done away with, since the four games would be played on successive week-ends beginning late in October. Practice, is at present, could start two or three weeks before the first game.

4. The crescends of interest, at present, extending over eight games, would be limited to four games; and so the

M'MILLAN, ARCTIC EXPLORER, COMING

Will Give Illustrated Lecture In Town Hall In March

Donald B. MacMillan, the famous arctic explorer, will give his illustrated lecture in the Town hall on March 11, according to an announcement made this morning. The lecture will be under the auspices of the college.

Middlebury is fortunate in being able to secure this world famous explorer for his services as a lecturer are very much in demand. His last attempt to reach the Pole, which was made last summer, was not successful. He went north with two ships, the Peary and the Bowdoin, one of which carried aeroplanes, which were to have been used to fly over the polar regions. However, adverse weather conditions forced the party back after it had reached the northern part of Greenland. All the details of this trip will probably be told by MacMillan in his lecture here.

Colleges Score Football At Wesleyan Parley

large percentage of attention given football now would be lessened by cutting down of the length of the season.

5. Colleges playing teams only in their own class and vicinity would minimize the commercial aspect of schedule making; and no small college teams would be called upon to sacrifice themselves in order to make money for their institutions as at present. This altruistic motive given for these set-up games, the making of money to support other sports, is in no sense a defense for football. Appropriate taxes on undergraduates would serve instead, if such a step were necessary.

"We would also inaugurate the following rules within the colleges:

1. That graduating coaching systems be instituted, and that no coach paid a salary beyond that of professor; and
2. That coaches be not allowed to sit on the players' bench during the game, but that captains alone direct their teams so that undergraduates would be playing undergraduates and not coaches playing coaches."

The resolution was endorsed by delegates from nine colleges—Dartmouth, Harvard, Tufts, Trinity, Bowdoin, Williams, Connecticut Agricultural College, Wesleyan, Princeton. The Holy Cross representative was the only one who dissented. The delegates were editors of student papers, student government officials. While their action does not commit student bodies their influence on student opinion is great.

Both the German and Spanish Clubs held Christmas parties last evening.

Toastmaster Mullen, Who Hardly Was Sullen, Presides at the Rites For The Young Neophytes

The Ancient and Honorable Order of the Phi Phi held its annual conclave at its historic lodge Saturday night.

The spacious banquet hall was lavisly decorated with inter-collegiate colors, the blue and white predominating. Interspersed with the decorations, around the hall, hung the ancient implements of initiation casting lurid shadows, chilling the blood of the trembling neophytes. The long tables groaning with the bounteous repast, stretched around three sides of the hall.

Grace, offered by the Rev. Pledge Brother Leahy, followed by a toast to the ancient traditions of Phi Phi proposed by the Grand and Highly Exalted Potentate "Gus" Mullen, opened the banquet.

The first speech of the evening was delivered by the Grand Chaplain, the Reverend Brother Leahy with the most soul-lifting feeling and expression. It was "Old Mother Hubbard went to the Cupboard". Later in the evening a talk on "The High Price of Cheese in Siam" was given by neophyte Eastman. A solo, "Little Babies in Their Baskets Will Soon Be Lying in Their Caskets", rendered by Grand Chaplain Leahy was well received, but he made the fatal error of offering an encore, the old college hymn, "You Can't Play In My Back Yard Any More". This was greeted by a barrage of biscuits and turkey bones which deterred him from offering his third number, his well known selection "The Maiden's Prayer." Another attraction which added to the evening's success was an entertainment furnished unexpectedly by Jordan '29.

Following the repast, the noble brothers adjourned to the blue chamber, where the awsome rights of initiation were performed. After the brothers had received the triple blessing, the conclave was adjourned until 1926.

The new brothers initiated were. MacNeil, '26, Keene, '27, Eastman and Vecchiola, '28, and Jason, Jordan, Kelley, Lobban, and Pattee, '29. The other noble brothers present were: Mullen, Knowles, Hawthorne, Jackson, Hade, Moore, Lebowitz, Samson, Connelly, and Wright, '26; Collins, Dickerman, and Higgins, '27; Gee and Leahy, '28.

DRAMA REVIEW

"Suppressed Desires" under the direction of Ruth Tupper '27; "The Twelve Pound Look", Blanche Walker '27, producer; and "Deceivers", as staged by Auburn Ross '26, were the productions of the Wig and Pen last Thursday evening. As to general excellence of production, these plays averaged higher than those of any other evening this year. A marked diminution in the amount of prompting played no small part in this but the attention to detail by the producers left also, a very evident effect.

SUPPRESSED DESIRES

Stephen Brewster____Harold Fisher '27
Henrietta Brewster, his wife______
________________Rachel Poole '27
Mabel, her sister__Madolyn Derrick '27

Miss Tupper's production was a delightful choice. The story of Henrietta whose experiences as interpreted by the famous Dr. Russell, phychologist, cause the most unexpectedly ludicrous and pathetically far-fetched results, is filled to the brim with surprises.

As Henrietta, Miss Poole gave a most distinguished interpretation of her role. She combined an enviable stage presence with an ease of action which augurs well for her dramatic future. Hers was easily the most rounded acting in the play, if not during the entire evening.

Mr. Fisher, as the husband, did very satisfactorily. His action was all that could be expected but an occasinal lapse of memory at a crucial moment marred the effect.

Mabel, as impersonated by Miss Derrick, was good but inclined to overact. This was, we feel sure, a fault which would have been eradicated if she had had full benefit of the rhearsals. We think that she did exceptionally well in the light of her substitution at such short notice.

As the details of play production go, "Suppressed Desires" may be reckoned first in the evening in more ways than one.

THE TWELVE POUND LOOK

Lady Sims____________Mary Crane '29
Sir Harry Sims_______Chester Sloat '29
Kate______________Ruth Spaulding '29
Tombes________________John Owen '29

The best acting in this production was done by Miss Spaulding. Perfectly at ease, natural in look, word and act, she commanded the stage at every turn. With Miss Poole's acting, in the first play, hers vies for first place in the evening. We envied Kate both her independence and her dramatic ability.

Miss Crane, as the wife of the tyrannical Sir Harry, did well in a rather slight part. We thank the mistress of properties who found the lady's dress, which so quaintly became the winsome wearer.

Mr. Sloat made Sir Harry a rather less vigorous and dominant creature than, we suspect, was Barrie's conception of him. There was nothing pronouncedly good or bad about his interpretation of the role. Rather a general lack of sympathy with the character impersonated seemed to be in evidence.

THE DECEIVERS

Amos Little___________Earl Samson' 26
Flora Little____Charlotte Raymond '26
The Burglar____Robert MacDonald '26

Undoubtedly the most amusing of the evenin's plays was this last which was directed by Auburn Ross '26. Local allusions, over the telephone, to certain poker enhtusiasts in the student body lent a certain spice to the original play.

The story of that old excuse "work at the office" when " a game of jacks" comes nearer the truth, causes the wife to set an unknown detective on the trail. The amusing complications when a burglar is mistaken for the detective make the story.

No individual may claim chief honors in this production, honors being fairly evenly divided. Miss Raymond was in places as ineffectual in her acting as the lady she impersonated was to cope with the burglar. She was, however, letter perfect in her part and did a commendable bit.

Mr. Samson was so skillfully prompted that probably very few of his audience realized how little of his part he really knew. Moreover, though the cute (?) actions behind the screen afforded temporary amusement they detracted from the effect of the play. As Mr. Little, he did well but we are certain he could have done better.

We wish such a clever and amusing burglar as Mr. MacDonald might rob us some time, it would really be quite a favor. Gentlemen burglars are unfortunately uncommon. In other words we are trying to say we liked Mr. MacDonald; and if he goes broke we'd appreciate being robbed.

INTRAMURAL SERIES STARTS IN JANUARY

Stiff Competition Promised For Cup Which Is Now Held By D. K. E.

The first games in the interfraternity basketball league will be played directly after vacation. Each of the seven teams has been practising regularly during the past week and it is promised that several strong quintets will be developed. There will no doubt be some stiff competition for the title which is now held by Delta Kappa Epsilon. The cup will go into the permanent possession of the team which wins it for three times. It was offered for the first time last season, by the Sages, who conduct the tourney.

Freshmen are eligible to play on their fraternity teams. Their work during the first month of the season will be closely watched by the varsity coach in an effort to discover likely varsity material. After mid-years, a few of the yearlings who have done the best work on their fraternity teams will probably be taken on to the varsity squad.

Blue Baboon Elects Ruth Tupper To Staff

Miss Ruth M. Tupper '27 of Worcester, Mass., was elected as an assistant on the business staff of the Blue Baboon at the meeting of the Board of Control of the publication last week. Miss Tupper, the third woman to be elected to the staff of Middlebury's comic, will assist Miss Wyman and Miss Hazelton in the circulation of the Baboon in the Women's College.

The copy for the Bootleg Number was sent to the printer today and it is planned to bring out this issue during the examination period to vary the monotony of the ten day period of mental gymnastics.

W. M. Meacham '21 is now principal of Barton Academy, Barton, Vt. He is also secretary of the Orleans County fair for 1926.

Y. W. C. A. BAZAAR IS BIG SUCCESS

Many Novelties and Fancy Articles Sold; Dancing Is Enjoyed

The annual Y. W. C. A. bazaar was held in the gym Saturday evening. The four booths, tastefully decorated in red and green, gave a colorful touch to the scene. The first booth to the left of the entrance was the fancy work and jewelry booth. In the corner on the same side was the candy booth which seemed to be very popular during the evening. To the right of the entrance was a table on which were Christmas wreaths, which sold immediately. The Japanese booth with its many novelties was also a center of attraction. The food booth was next, the contents of which looked very appetizing. In the extreme right hand corner was the fortune-telling booth made of Indian blankets, and in charge of Sarah Silverman who made a very charming an d realistic gipsy. During the first part of the evening Santa Claus was present with the grab bag.

A section of the floor was roped off for dancing. At the extreme left hand corner of this space was a large Christmas tree, attractively decorated. At nine o'clock dancing began, music being furnished by Gruggel's Serenaders.

The proceeds of this bazaar, which are to go towards the Maqua fund, were sufficiently large so that the committee in charge feel that the bazaar was a great success.

Y. W. C. A. Meeting

The Y. W. C. A. meeting Tuesday evening was a Christmas meeting. The meeting was opened by a Scripture reading from Matthew, followed by a program, consisting of a piano solo, and a vocal solo by Miriam Sweet.

Students who wish to have their mail forwarded to them during vacation should leave forwarding addresses at the postoffice. Otherwise the mail will be held for them until the opening of college.

The Middlebury Christian Association is to hold its regular weekly meetings in Hepburn Social Hall this evening.

Do College Students Insure Their Lives?
The Answer Seems to be "Yes"
Do You Know
That in a test recently made with upper-class students of both sexes in fourteen representative colleges, 140 out of 351 said they carried life Insurance policies?
It is significant that 40% of undergraduates have insurance on their lives—a notable advance over what prevailed twenty, or even ten, years ago. This shows that college students and their parents think life insurance is of considerable use in connection with the educational program.
Parents believe in it because they have something invested for the benefit of their children. Students realize that their lives have an economic value.
The John Hancock is particularly interested in insuring college men and women and in obtaining college graduates for the personnel of the field staff.

Middlebury Has Many Clubs and Societies

sending out college publicity should be organized. For a time it had an active membership roll but about four years ago interest began to lag and since the college felt that the work should be carried on it adopted the policy of hiring one student to do the work. However the old name was kept and consequently the present unusual situation exists.

With the exception of the Press Club, the smallest organization in point of numbers is Tau Kappa Alpha, honorary debating fraternity, which at present has an active chapter of only four. The largest is no doubt the Dramatic Club, which has on its rolls between two and three hundred members.

The desire of students to belong to secret or semi-secret societies—organizations, at least, which have a limited membership and which only admit outsiders by a vote of the members, is shown by the existence of seven fraternities, six sororities, four class honorary societies and four honorary fraternities. Some of the departmental clubs have semi-limited membership also, but as a rule anyone who is interested in their work can become a member if he so desires.

It is interesting to note that at Middlebury each of the fraternities and sororities hold a charter from some national organization.

Besides the fraternities there exists the Philian society for neutral men and the Pyramid Club for neutral women. The former is not in active existence this year.

Three of the four honorary fraternities are also national, namely Phi Beta Kappa, Tau Kappa Alpha and Kappa Phi Kappa, while the fourth, Phi Pi Epsilon, for those who have done meritorious work on the publications, is local. The last three mentioned are exclusively for men, Phi Beta Kappa being the only one which admits both sexes.

The class honorary societies are of course local. Delta Tau and Sage, for sophomore and junior men respectively, were founded in 1910, Waubanakee was established in 1911 and Banshee in 1912. In all four, members are always picked in the spring previous to the year that they are to be active. Delta Taus and Sages are always equally proportioned among the various fraternities and the neutrals, while the two senior societies, Waubanakee and Banshees, choose their members solely on the basis of service rendered to the college, without regard to fraternal affiliations. Membership in any one of these organizations is among the highest of college honors.

Both men's and women's colleges have their Christian Associations which are branches of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. Membership is open to all. The women's organization here is older and does a more active work, although that of the men, which was founded two years ago, is fast beginning to play a prominent part in college life. Connected to the Y. W. C. A. are two separate organizations, the Maqua Club and the Student Volunteer Group. The former includes all those girls who have attended the Y. W. conference held annually at Camp Maqua, Maine, while the latter is made up of girls who intend to take up missionary work.

Departmental Clubs

Presenting a different and more interesting aspect of studies taken up in the class rooms and fostering a greater interest in the various subjects, are the five departmental clubs. Among these active organizations are the English, Science, German, French and Spanish Clubs. In each case, their rolls are made up mainly of those majoring in the various departments, although membership is usually open to all interested. The English Club has recently departed from this policy by its decision to admit only those who have done outstanding work in the department, thus making it more of an honorary club.

Related to the departmental clubs but yet having a somewhat wider range are the Dramatic Club and Wetherell Debating Club. The former has been especially active in the past few years, now having the largest membership of any organization in college and having its own Playhouse where productions are staged weekly. The Wetherell Club is a rather loose organization of those interested in public speaking and debating. Its work of directing the debating policies of the college is now mainly in the hands of Tau Kappa Alpha.

The two remaining clubs are the Men's and Women's Glee Clubs, which are really under a somewhat different classification than those which have been mentioned above, since their members are chosen from a large number of competitors by the directors.

Sub-Rosa Clubs

The desire to organize has gone even further, and not content with the possibilities for membership offered by the thirty-seven organizations already referred to, students have caused at least half a dozen "sub-rosa" gatherings to exist. Since none of these have very definite organizations and since membership rolls are very loose, it has been exceedingly difficult to gather facts concerning them. One of the outstanding ones is Phi Phi, a very exclusive group whose secrets are open only to those who live or have lived on the fifth floor of Hepburn Hall. It has a distinguished chapter roll and always draws envious eyes when it holds its annual banquet. Another which has recently sprung into existence is the Seven Day and Night Club. It is rumored that the prerequisite to membership in this noble order is that one have a date for seven consecutive days with seven different women. The pink chrysanthemum in the buttonhole, distinguishes the honored few who are on the chapter roll. Last year, the Saturday Night Forum, which met at midnight at the close of each week in the Chi Psi Lodge to hold bull sessions over the week's events, was outstanding in the life of the college.

Another active group are the Scullions, consisting of all men who work or who have worked in Hepburn Commons. The hash-slingers, as they are more familiarly termed, have a formal ball annually and it is considered a distinct honor to be eligible to attend. It is also rumored that certain students hold a charter in Delta Gamma Phi, which has qualifications for membership exactly opposite to those of Phi Beta Kappa. Its chapter roll, if such exists, is not publicly known.

There are at least two "sub-rosa" groups among the co-eds, one being the Gables Gang, now all seniors, consisting of girls who once lived at the Gables and another made up of girls who have once resided at the Weybridge house. Both have more or less regular gatherings. Without a doubt other such organizations exist but they are of such a nature that it is very difficult to trace them down and obtain definite facts upon them.

The facts which have been given all go to prove that Middlebury students are "joiners"—they like to belong to organizations. There is probably not a students in college that does not belong to at least one of the clubs, fraternities or societies which have been mentioned in this article.

Heavy Student Vote On Court Question

Colleges Over Nation Express Desire To Have United States Enter World Tribunal

The nation-wide student poll on the World Court question taken in about three hundred colleges all over the country last week has been compiled by the "New Student" of New York and the results published. Over 120,000 student votes were cast. Roughly speaking, the votes for the various proposals were divided in about the same proportion as they were at Middlebury. The vote on the four proposals was:

The Harding-Hughes-Coolidge Terms 39,327; The "Harmony" Plan 21,385; Borah terms 7,884; Against the Court 12,412.

In many colleges the vote was simply "for" or " against." These results were For, 33,687; against 6,582.

The interpretation of these votes is that 93,799 voted for the Court on terms probably acceptable to the Administration; 7,884 favored the strong reservations of Senator Borah and 18,940 were against the Court. This is based on the supposition that the President Coolidge and the Senate would be favorable to the Harmony Plan which provides for withdrawal after five years if international law has not been codified. The World Count question is due to come up in the Senate tomorrow for discussion.
